WELCOME LETTER

We are delighted to announce that the joint meeting of the International Society for Neurochemistry (ISN) and the European Society for Neurochemistry (ESN), will take place during August 8-11, 2023 in Porto, Portugal. On behalf of the organising committee, we are pleased to invite you to join the exciting program at this biennial scientific meeting of ISN and the sister society, ESN.

The Program brings a collection of Plenary Lectures, Symposia and Workshops, carefully selected by the Program Committee. These activities embrace a diverse array of topics ranging from cellular, molecular, systemic to behavioral neurochemistry. Excitingly, we will have the third “Marthe Vogt Lecture” gracing the event. This prestigious award recognises the work of female scientists who have made outstanding contributions to Neurochemistry. To ensure a balanced meeting program, we have allocated ample time for poster presentations, exhibits and events. These activities offer an opportune time for delegates to meet colleagues, foster ongoing contacts, build new collaborations, and facilitate professional development.

ISN and ESN are also committed to supporting the development of the next generation of researchers. We offer Travel Awards to provide funding for travel to attend ISN-ESN 2023. We also offer the Young Scientist Lectureship Award and Emerging Group Leaders Symposia to outstanding mid career scientists, and Young Members’ Symposia Awards to outstanding early career scientists to showcase their exciting work.

Lastly, the social side of the event is just as important as the scientific content. A series of engaging and enjoyable social events have been planned so that delegates of ISN-ESN 2023 can continue to engage with each other in a relaxed, friendly and pleasant atmosphere.

We welcome you to the magnificent city of Porto and hope that you all have a successful and rewarding 2023 ISN-ESN Meeting.

Cheah Pike-See
Program Chair

Flávia Gomes

ABOUT ISN

The International Society for Neurochemistry (ISN), founder and publisher of the Journal of Neurochemistry, has a proud history dating back to its establishment in 1965. ISN, the sole international society focused on neurochemistry strives to promote all relevant aspect of molecular and cellular neuroscience. ISN is a nonprofit membership organization of scientists and physicians who are active in the field of neurochemistry, cell and molecular neuroscience or related areas and works to the following mission:

ISN
International Society
for Neurochemistry

- To facilitate the worldwide advancement of neurochemistry and related neuroscience disciplines
- To foster the education and development of neuroscientists, particularly of young and emerging investigators
- To disseminate information about neurochemistry and neurochemists' activities throughout the world for further details about the ISN, you may refer to the website; www.neurochemistry.org
